AUCTION GUIDE

THE RITZ-CARLTON®

THE 2017 EJOPA AUCTION has many outstanding items that will be of interest to the EJOPA members. Because of the support received from friends and partners, we are providing this guide well in advance so you can prepare to bid on them. Those who are not able to attend this years convention will have the opportunity to bid on items as well. Please see the attached form fillable pdf. in this email.

Proceeds for the auction will be utilized to support activities and programs to meet the goals of EJOPA.

SYSTEM BATTERY BUS CONTACTOR MODIFICATION

VALUE $4,000.00

Be the first to enhance your battery life! It's a proven fact that parasitic current drain damages batteries. Now there's a solution. Making its debut at the EJOA Convention is RAS's latest product, a modified Battery Bus Contactor that reduces the parasitic drain on your batteries by a factor of 1000. Currently, the aircraft's parasitic drain will reduce your batteries capacity by 10% in just 16 days. With the RAS Battery Bus Contactor Modification, it will take 15,800 days to drain your battery by 10%

SR71 SIMULATOR

VALUE

$4,000.00

This simulator was designed and built in 1963-1965 under great secrecy by Link—the company founded by Edwin Link, who fabricated his first flight simulation device in 1929. It is the only one ever produced and it was used to train SR-71 crews of the Air Force's 9th Strategic Reconnaissance Wing at Beale AFB, California. While the simulator was undergoing a major upgrade in 1989, the Air Force cancelled its SR-71 operation. However, NASA was given three of the retired “Blackbirds” for research purposes, and the upgraded simulator was shipped to the Dryden Flight Research Center at Edwards Air Force Base, California to support the NASA crews. Air Force and NASA crews shared the simulator when the Air Force reinstated SR-71 operations from 1994 to 1997, and NASA continued to fly the “Blackbird” until the 9th of October, 1999, the last flight ever for the SR-71.

STC FOR PPG WINDSHIELD
AVIO NG 1.5/1.7

VALUE $12,500.00

If you like the quality, clarity, and performance of the PPG windshields, but don't want to upgrade to IFMS, this soon to be released STC is for you. This STC allows for the installation of PPG windshields in Avio NG and Avio NG 1.5/1.7 aircraft (Avidyne to follow). This STC includes two small electronic control devices that translate the PPG windshield output to signals your existing ACS software understands. Certification is ongoing, but in the event that it is not certified by August 31, 2017 RAS will, at your option, refund the auction price up to $12,500.00.
